

The Economist Cover Predicts the World Ahead in 2025

by Jeremy James

Many online commentators are dedicated to exposing the awful threat posed by the scheming Cabal of billionaires who are working together to create a 'new world order'. Some have written about the various coded messages which the Cabal like to broadcast via the controlled media.

These 'messages' appear to serve a variety of purposes. Movie themes can focus on worldwide calamities, pandemic diseases, or the use of new technology to control the population. These messages can be reinforced by television and given a more visceral coloration through online gaming. Collectively they frame a 'future' which the viewer could expect to manifest sometime during his or her lifetime. The emotions evoked by these strategically crafted story lines are designed to condition the audience to passively accept the official explanation of these events should they ever come to pass. They implant in their minds an understanding of these calamities which omits any serious analysis of the role that their government, or world leaders in general, may have played in planning or bringing them about.

Let's take a very recent example of this. After 13 years of continuous conflict which involved largescale military operations, devastating bombardments, extensive destruction of property, forced mass migration, and a horrifying death toll, the government of Syria changed hands overnight – literally overnight. The Syrian army, which numbered several hundred thousand, was seemingly ordered by the ruling regime to stand down and allow some 10,000 to 15,000 militants to take control of the country. Assad and his crew fled to Russia, while Russia itself, a staunch ally of Syria, made no attempt to repel the invaders.

An unstoppable gang of social media fanatics topple the Syrian regime

The mainstream media tried to convey the impression that the Assad regime had finally fallen, that the forces arrayed against it were simply too strong to resist any longer. And the Western public, long conditioned to accept such ‘official’ explanations, were unable to see how idiotic this was. Totalitarian regimes topple only when faced with overwhelming odds, having suffered a series of devastating setbacks and incurred huge losses of military personnel. But this didn't happen in Syria in recent weeks. The regime offered no serious resistance to this new incursion – which differed little from many similar incursions in the past . The leaders simply left the country and allowed a rag-tag horde of gun-toting militants to take over.

They are following a script

The Cabal are working to a timetable. Assad, Putin, Netanyahu, Erdogan and other leaders in the region are playing on the same team. They are all high-ranking Freemasons who take their orders from the Cabal. The script requires that they act out their respective roles under the direction of their handlers, thus giving the public the impression that unwieldy political forces are embroiled in an intractable struggle and that the outcome will be determined in the main by chance factors and human error. In reality, the game plan was written many years beforehand and suitable actors were then selected to put it into effect.

The Cabal like to retain the same actors for as long as possible to ensure continuity and a smooth transition from one critical phase to another. Putin has been in power for decades. So have Erdogan and Netanyahu, while the two Assads, father and son, had ruled Syria for over fifty years.

The favored platforms for broadcasting Illuminati messages

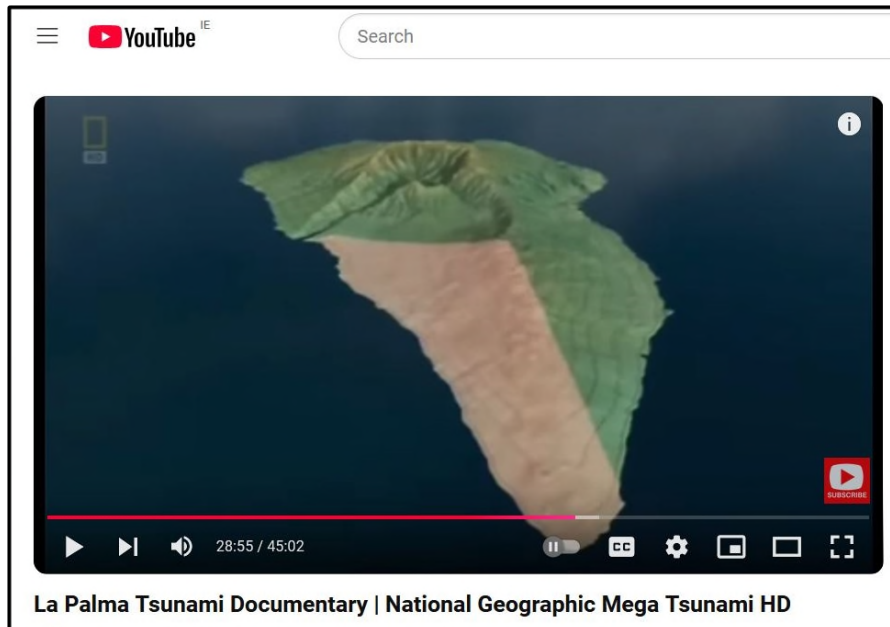

The online commentators who have been watching out for these ‘messages’ and who try to interpret them have drawn attention time and again to the role played by The Simpsons cartoon series and the covers of The Economist magazine. We did this ourselves in our paper #380 – La Palma and the Great Reset (March 1, 2024).

It is no accident that the Cabal chose The Simpsons as a conduit for their cryptic messages and prophetic allusions. It is probably the most recognizable television series in the world, with a viewership of several billion in over a hundred countries. As a cartoon, it permits the exploration of eccentric and irrational themes with no loss of reality – since the series had no reality to begin with. Viewers take whatever they see at face value and never imagine for a moment that their source of entertainment is a sophisticated tool for social engineering and political propaganda.

In our previous paper (#380) we examined the episode of The Simpsons which appeared to be sending a ‘message’ about the Canary Islands (episode 15 of the 14th season, aired March 16, 2003). We also discussed a commemorative gold coin issued by the Royal Mint in honor of the popular singer, George Michael. These names, George and Michael, are an esoteric reference to Michael the Archangel and St George, the patron saint of England. In the world of occult symbology, they refer to the same individual, where St George represents the Archangel in his earthly aspect.

As it happens, the official coat of arms for the island of La Palma depicts Michael the Archangel as its supernatural guardian. Also, the commemorative gold coin was issued with the express approval of the King of England, Charles III, whose profile appears on the reverse. As we have shown in the paper, the king's left ear is strangely styled to suggest a small bird, possibly a canary, perched near his ear lobe.

Other allusions to a future mega tsunami

The role of La Palma in the Cabal's plan for world transformation was revealed in a scientific documentary by National Geographic in 2011. According to the scientists who contributed to this program, the semi-dormant volcano on La Palma could be expected to erupt again. They theorized that the western flank of the island would collapse into the Atlantic and produce a mega-tsunami that could sweep across the ocean within hours. They concluded that emergency evacuation orders could conceivably be issued for Brooklyn, Queens and Lower Manhattan. The closing portion of the documentary even included a huge animated ocean wave rolling with devastating force through the streets of New York city.

A similar motif was installed in the stonework of the Cathedral of St John the Divine in New York in the period 1988-1997. As the official website says:

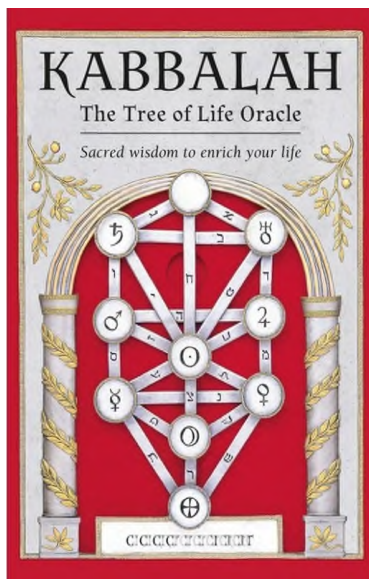

The Portal of Paradise, as the Cathedral's central portal is called, was completed by master stonemason Simon Verity between 1988 and 1997. The figures of the Portal reflect a modern sensibility in their proportions and features... Flanking the doors are Old and New Testament figures. Under their feet are some of the most striking examples of the Cathedral's modern stonework. In keeping with the Italian Renaissance tradition of depicting biblical scenes in modern settings, the sections below these figures show visions of destruction, with NYC skyscrapers collapsing beneath the mushroom cloud of a nuclear explosion.

<https://www.stjohndivine.org/visit/explore-the-cathedral>

The reference to a “nuclear explosion” is deliberately misleading. The scene clearly depicts a massive wall of water engulfing the city.

The official website makes no reference however to the Tree of Life, which was also installed. Given that this was a blatant endorsement of Kabbalah, the ancient magical system promoted with great zeal by apostate Jews, we are asked to believe that Kabbalah will either cause the destruction of Christianity or that it is destined to supersede it:

The alleged threat posed by the La Palma volcano, known as Cumbre Vieja, was reinforced in the public consciousness by its temporary reactivation between 19 September and 13 December 2021. We say ‘reactivation’ since the technology needed to destabilize tectonic plates or selected regions of the earth’s mantle is known to exist. If the Cabal are sending a message of their intentions then it is reasonable to assume that they possess the means to trigger the event in question or, if not, that they are able to convince the public, via CGI and other means, that a huge seismic event has taken place. The resulting tsunami – a real event – could easily be generated by a series of underwater explosions close to the target coastlines.

The Economist* cover predicting the world ahead in 2025

This brings us to the main part of our paper, namely the inclusion of messages in The Economist cover for 2025 which appear to pertain to La Palma.

We do not hesitate to concede that much of what we have discussed so far is highly speculative and that the following section will continue in the same vein. The reader should bear in mind that we are not trying to predict the future – which we definitely cannot do! – but to decrypt obscure messages left by influential men who serve the prince of this world. Their hearts and minds are given to wickedness and they take a perverse pleasure in telegraphing their intentions to the sleeping masses. To that extent they are like criminal psychopaths who leave confusing clues at the scene of a crime, confident that law enforcement will be bamboozled by their superior intellectual prowess.

A complete copy of the cover image is given in Appendix A. This will allow the reader to see how the sections we have chosen for analysis fit into the overall picture.

Our first excerpt may be found in the bottom righthand corner of the cover image:

We interpret this portion as follows: The smoke above what appears to be an island is vaguely reminiscent of an angel with large outstretched wings. The 'smoke' itself is produced by an explosion on the island. Thus we take this section to represent the island of La Palma, the island of the Archangel, after the volcano has exploded.

The red frame to the right of this image also depicts a massive explosion. Presumably this too is a reference to La Palma. The same image appears two more times on the magazine cover, on each occasion in association with La Palma [We will discuss these below].

The frame with the enormous clenched fist is the classic revolutionary sign made by Marxists. This seems to denote, if not celebrate, the explosion on the island as the ultimate act of defiance, while the text to the right of the clenched fist could be taken to represent the revolutionary plan which led to this world-changing event.

The following excerpt from the magazine cover shows what appears to be a cloud made by a large explosion, though it could also be seen as the plume of gas expelled by an erupting volcano. Once again we find the orange 'explosion' image right next to it.

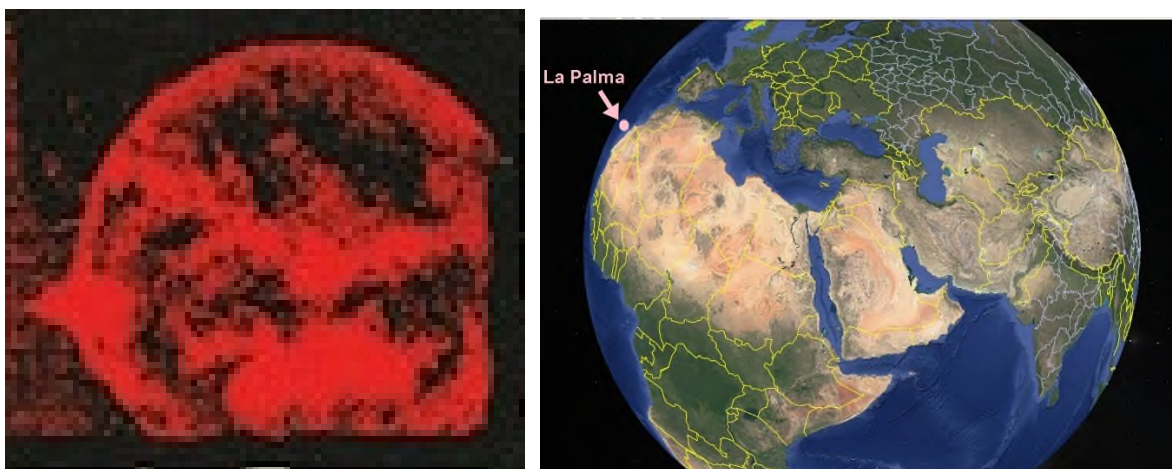

The next excerpt is especially interesting since it includes the same orange 'explosion' image, the planet Saturn (which is a proxy for Satan), a city skyline similar to that of New York, three symbols that look like the Japanese currency symbol but with only one horizontal bar instead of two, and, finally, a strange orb in black and red with a pronounced deformity on its left side.

The yen-like symbol is reminiscent of the 'forked cross' revered by Christian mystics in the German Rhineland in the 13th and 14th centuries. They viewed this variant as the Tree of Life, very possibly under the influence of Kabbalah. This would suggest that the three 'forked crosses' on the cover of The Economist are a blasphemous reference to the hill of Calvary, where, they allege, the cross of Christ was no more significant, spiritually speaking, than that of the two thieves. The close proximity of Saturn (Satan) lends credence to this interpretation.

We believe the red and black orb represents the earth and that the protruding portion depicts the exploding volcano on La Palma.

We took a screenshot of the earth from the Google Earth website and set it beside the red and black orb so that the dark lefthand patch corresponded to Africa, the central red space the Indian Ocean, the dark righthand patch India, and the upper dark patch the Eurasian landmass. Seen from that perspective, the red point protruding from the orb closely matched the location of the Canary Islands.

CONCLUSION

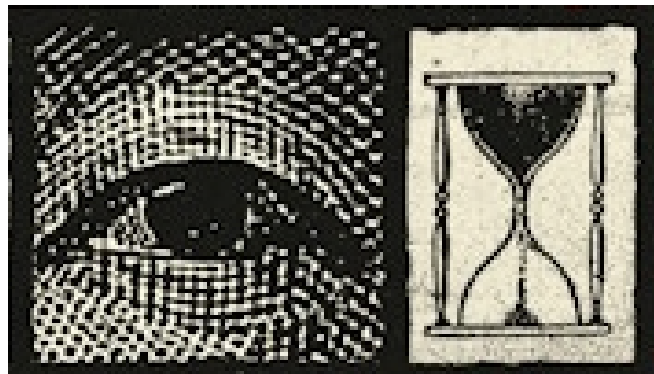

God's Word reveals the true character of the Enemy. He was a liar and a murderer from the start. He wants to take absolute control over the entire earth and make mankind subject to his infernal will. The destructive plan set out in this paper is therefore driven by his insane craving for world domination.

His servants here on earth are obliged to do his bidding. This means they are implementing a plan that extends beyond the lifetime of those who oversee it. It is intergenerational, with the scions of one generation taking over where their antecedents left off. The mastermind behind it all is Satan himself.

The World Economic Forum, which is a mouthpiece for the economic aspects of this grand plan, like to speak of ‘the Great Reset’. This is the tumultuous moment when the wealth of the world is funnelled through a digital system which exercises total control over ownership rights and all associated privileges. When this happens, the middle class will cease to exist. A feudal order will come into operation, where a super-wealthy ruling aristocracy will exercise unlimited control over an impoverished mass of workers and serfs.

This radical transition must appear to be necessitated by events beyond the control of man. Toward that end the Cabal is apparently engineering a natural catastrophe, along the lines of La Palma (or similar seismic events), which will topple the international financial system and cause a colossal market crash. The nations will accept this as an “act of God” and the sole and immediate cause of all their misery. The Cabal can then step forward and propose a solution. In this way they will appear to be “the good guys” who save mankind and not the wicked schemers who wrought the catastrophe.

The glass timer on The Economist cover has puzzled some commentators. It signifies, not the passage of time, but the start of a new age. It is located beside the ‘all-seeing eye’ of Lucifer to indicate that this ‘new age’ belongs to him. It marks the end of Christianity and the victory which Satan imagines he is certain to achieve.

The notion of ‘throwing’ a mountain into the sea may have a special appeal to the Enemy. He has surely reflected on the words of Jesus in Mark chapter 11 and perhaps concluded that there is no faith greater than the faith he has in his own abilities:

“For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith.” (Mark 11:23)

The tsunami event itself would appear to find a place in God’s Word in the comments that Jesus made about the End Time in chapter 21 of the Gospel of Luke:

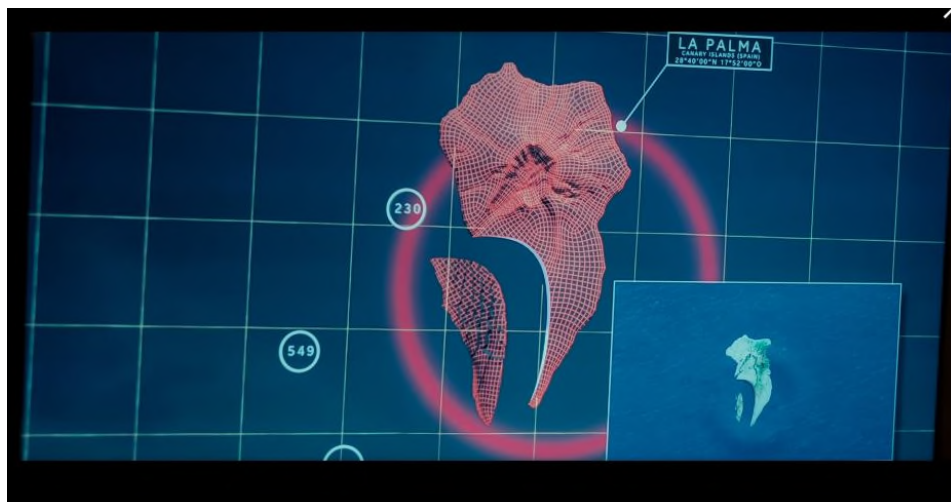

“And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men’s hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken.” (Luke 21:25-26)

It is hard to find a clear application for the words “the sea and the waves roaring” unless they refer to an oceanic event – or perhaps a number of such events – which are so destructive that they cause “distress of nations”, universal “perplexity”, and a crippling fear in the hearts of men. La Palma would certainly satisfy these prophetic criteria.

The conditioning of the public looks set to continue. Netflix has just released a series called La Palma which deals with this very topic.

The series seems designed to stamp a number of powerful images in the minds of those who watch it, including the projected collapse of the western side of La Palma (see below) and the production of a devastating mega tsunami:

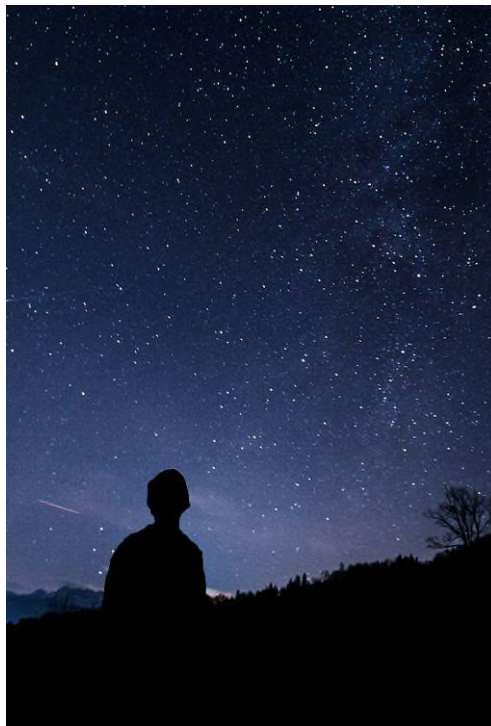

The divine plan

As born-again Christians, we see and interpret the world and its events through the lens of Scripture. We know where this infernal scheme is going. We know it is part of a greater Plan, that the End Time will be a period of intense suffering for mankind but that it will be mercifully short. And when the true Messiah returns he will destroy forever the works of darkness. Christ will triumph over the Wicked and inaugurate an age of truth and righteousness. The victory secured on Calvary at great cost will come into view and the Lord himself will wipe away all tears.

As we move toward that critical hour, we need to remind ourselves that Satan operates only through deception, that his ambitions are hollow, and that his incredible pride prevents him from seeing that his defeat is inevitable. The LORD God is our fortress, our mighty refuge during the storms and trials devised by the Enemy. We don't need to let any of his wicked schemes unsettle us or cause despair.

Our Father is sovereign. He has delegated authority over all things to His Son, Jesus Christ. When the time is right, he will claim what is rightfully his and place all things under his feet!

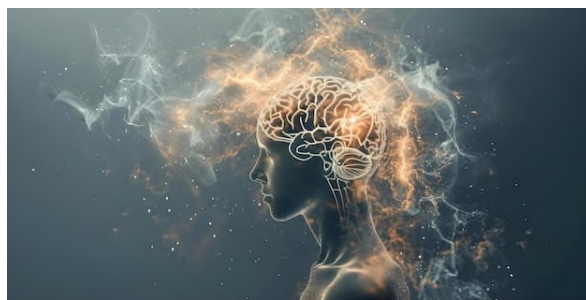

On the other hand, what does the Enemy offer his deluded followers? Nothing but the loss of their souls! Along the way they may enjoy certain pleasures of the flesh for a season, but the dark depths of hell await them. While on earth they must take their orders from a being who foolishly imagines he is god, who demands the sacrifice of little children, and who seeks reassurance from magical rites and ceremonies steeped in symbolism. He can't create anything, and yet he thinks he is god. He can't tell the future or heal or give life. He can't change any of the laws of God or produce a single outcome that God has not ordained.

Our Father made the heavens and the earth, and all that dwell therein. The Enemy, in contrast, has made nothing. And his followers pretend they are exercising great authority when they put silly covers on silly magazines! They live in a world of fantasy and delusion, unable to distinguish between symbols and reality. Trapped in their vain imagination, they are slaves to a dark master who will continue to exploit them until their worn out bodies fall apart. They had no rest in life and they will have none in death.

Nevertheless, our wonderful Redeemer can release them if they repent! His work on Calvary, his precious blood, can free any soul from the power of darkness – but they must ask! Satan will try to convince them that this is impossible, that they are his, both now and forever. But this too is a lie! He has the power to persecute, if not execute, those of his generational servants who try to leave him, but unless they do this, unless they receive Christ while they are still on earth, they will be lost forever:

“For we ourselves also were [at one time] foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour toward man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.” – Titus 3:3-7

As the Word of God says, His ways are past finding out. They are unsearchable. His knowledge is infinite. His mercy endures forever! Through His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, He has provided the one and only means of salvation. Jesus paid in full the price of our redemption on Calvary, but we are recipients of his incredible gift only when we repent.

A great delusion

Today an immensely powerful delusion is taking hold over all men and women who have not received Jesus. It is gathering momentum at such a rapid pace that spiritual discernment has all but disappeared. All values are relative and relative values, as we know, are tools of Satan. Even the best people – in their own eyes – are moved by him at his will. The pall of technology, atheistic indoctrination, screen media, online social networks, false science, and an endless stream of materialistic propaganda has settled like a fine dust on the minds of men, cutting off the Light.

They stare back with glazed eyes when we share the Gospel. For them any mention of the cross is foolishness.

For those who can recognize it, this blindness is horrifying. It's as though the little spots of leprosy that we detected twenty years ago have grown into putrefying sores and festering facial ulcerations. A nation that willingly kills her unborn children has unwittingly signed her own death warrant.

This helps to put La Palma in perspective. Whether it comes to pass as the Wicked are predicting, or whether calamity strikes in another form, is not really important. What matters is the underlying societal calamity – the national rejection of God and the order He established for our benefit.

“Bless the LORD, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the LORD, all ye his hosts; ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure. Bless the LORD, all his works in all places of his dominion: bless the LORD, O my soul. – Psalm 103:20-22
